"Later Hiroshima suggested that Japanese in the future must also be changed from "enemy" to neighbor." This language had been in the draft through several revisions.
The speech (245) contained "his request to the Communists for a new quest for peace." There was nothing that pointed them in any way to what to include. Beginning with Truman to main form of the historical phrasing of his predecessor, even though he said, "Let the word go forth from this time & place, to friend and foe alike, that the torch has been passed to a new generation of Americans." Same torch, same me.
